Dear Sir,

Re: Public consultation on Spam Control Bill

The bill recommends an opt-out procedure for computer users who do not wish to receive spam messages. Such a recommendation would mean that we would have to remember to opt out of every spam advertisement that arrives, and to keep a record of numerous opt-outs in case we need to refer to them later in bringing a case against the advertiser. Would it not be possible to devise an opt-in scheme instead?

Thank you,
Yours sincerely,

CHOO Shien Yin (Miss)
