

Dear IMDA

I would like to voice concerns about the rolling out of 5G networks due to the potential dangers of 5G radiation and the lack of sufficient data to exclude any health risks from a 5G network.

We already know about various studies linking EMF radiation to various health issues and there just isn't enough data to convincingly say that a 5G network would not have similar health issues.

There are a number of cities in Europe and a number of places in the US where they have chosen to halt the trial of 5G networks due to concerns regarding the lack of testing for safety.

I hope you take all this into consideration and look more closely into future effects this could have before rolling out any 5G services.

Thank you.
Vahidha Shaik Naina